Brown University is a leading research university grounded in a student-centered approach to undergraduate education. Located in the heart of Providence, the vibrant capital city of Rhode Island, Brown is recognized for its world-renowned faculty and impactful research.

What's New at Brown

THE THOMAS J. WATSON SCHOOL OF INTERNATIONAL

AND PUBLIC AFFAIRS is dedicated to creating policy-focused learning experiences and research solutions that can change systems and societies for the better.

THE ADMISSION WELCOME CENTER opens in the fall of 2025 in Brown's historic Manning Hall, serving as a launchpad for campus tours and a home base for visitors and information sessions.

THE RUTH J. SIMMONS QUAD underwent renovations to add a terraced amphitheater, seating areas and landscaping to one of the campus's main green spaces — providing a new, accessible location for outdoor classes, performances and social activities.

THE BRIDGE SCHOLARS PROGRAM, a free six-week hybrid summer leadership institute, admitted its second cohort. With a focus on first-generation college students and others with limited college exposure, the program helps students build a strong and supportive community.

THE LINDEMANN PERFORMING ARTS CENTER has had a busy second year, hosting 25 courses as well as group rehearsals, student performances, Brown University Orchestra performances and special appearances by renowned artists Jon Batiste, Daveed Diggs, Julien Creuzet, Zlatomir Fung and more.

The Open Curriculum

80+ UNDERGRADUATE CONCENTRATIONS — OR YOU CAN DESIGN YOUR OWN

Brown's rigorous Open Curriculum provides flexibility for students and pushes them to become creative thinkers and entrepreneurial problem-solvers by eliminating core requirements outside of their concentration. Students concentrate in one or two areas of study but often complete coursework across several disciplines, pursuing additional learning opportunities through research, internships, international study and community-based projects.

Careers and Life after Brown

The Brown Center for Career Exploration supports students and recent graduates as they chart their pathways toward rewarding, meaningful careers. By facilitating personal reflection, connections within and beyond the Brown community, and exploration of many professional options, the center helps students and recent graduates achieve their career ambitions.

The center collaborates with departments across campus to connect students with Brown's rich array of career resources, tracks student activity after graduation and manages BrownConnect+, a digital platform that links students and alumni to internships, research opportunities and funding.

BROWN CENTER FOR CAREER EXPLORATION

Brown provides more than $5 million annually to fund internship and research experiences.
